“Design and Composition
Made Easy”

Are you frustrated with not knowing what to do next in your drawing or painting? Are you just making a literal translation of your reference material that lacks your expression and personality? Do you know how to create focal points and use color. You know something's not right but don't what it is? If you want the answers and solutions to these questions and more, this class will show you the way.

The class focuses on the design elements and principles and their applications in creating original art. The elements are the “building blocks” used in successful compositions and the principles are how they are arranged. Students will learn a “repeatable” process on how to arrange the elements using design principles in various compositional formats. Each discussed element, principle and format will be executed in small scale designs with a final larger piece to follow.
